CHAMP CLARK'S STORY.

How It Impressed a Youngster Who Heard
It In a Speech.

In the Garfield-Hancock campaign there was a big Democratic meeting at a certain place in St. Charles county, in this state. A number of distinguished Democratic speakers were there, and we had a day of it. The writer was then a small child, but one of the speakers made a very profound impression upon his mind. The speaker was no other than Champ Clark.

No one asks now, "Who was Champ Clark?" but then he was a new star in the firmament.

We had a number of speeches, and the children were very tired. I can't speak for the grown people, because the good Democrats there would not have owned to being tired, I know, after such a display of eloquence from their great party leaders. At any rate I was tired, but my mother whispered:

"There is only one more speech," and I was much relieved. A blond young man was introduced as Champ Clark of Pike county. He came forward with a pleasant face and manner that at once attracted my attention. He began in this way:

"I am reminded of the boy who killed a possum and expected to enjoy a possum dinner the next day. The family was about to sit down to the dinner table when a wagon drove up and a neighbor's family came in. The head of the house announced that the visitors had come to dinner. There was no room at the table for our young friend, the sportsman, and he waited, with his eyes anxiously fixed on the dish of possum.
The guests had good appetites. Finally there was only one piece of possum left, and one of his own family took that. Then the possum lover basted right out a-crying. The disappointment was too much for him."

"My friends," continued Mr. Clark,
"I am in that same condition. When I heard the first speech, I thought, well, that is pretty bad, but still I have something left to say. Then there came the next speech, and the next, and when the last speaker finished I just basted right out a-crying, because there was not another thing left for me to say."

But there was, and he said it too.
He awakened that audience till you could hear its applause a mile away.

I think that that was probably the first time Champ Clark ever spoke in St.
Charles county. He carried back home with him the thanks and appreciation of a good many of his hearers that day.

FOUNDING THE KONGO STATE.

Explorer Stanley Tells In Brief the Story of the Great Enterprise.

During my descent of the Kongo I had revolved over and over in my mind the question of the destiny of the river.
Said as the crew of my boat, which led me thence, and daily watching the river developing itself, I was preoccupled with these thoughts every leisure moment. There was, it seemed to me, no other power but England that could interest itself with this part of Africa, and, as I said, there was not a single white man in possession of any portion of the equatorial belt except at the mouth of the Kongo, where a few traders had gathered. But despite the numberous addresses in England upon this subject I failed to arouse more than a geographical interest in equatorial Africa. The terror of the African climate in general was too strong upon everybody.

Elsewhere, however, the reports of my addresses in the English newspapers were taking effect. After nearly nine months' busy life in England the king of the Belgians invited me to visit him, and I was then informed of his strong inclination to undertake for Africa what I had been so strenuously advising Englishmen to do. He was already president of the African Inland Empire association, which was about to set on foot a humanitarian enterprise from the east coast, and he led me to understand that if I were free from other engagements he would like to employ me in opening the Kongo basin to European influence and civilization.

It was my opinion that the best way of settling about the work was to construct a light surface railway which should skirt the cataracts of the lower Kongo and then to launch steamers on the upper waters, which I estimated would furnish about 6,000 miles of navigation. We argued about this matter from August to December, 1878. The best Belgian engineers were consulted, and after the most elaborate calculations as to cost it was finally decided that as the expense would be great we should content ourselves with making wagon roads past the cataracts and build a series of military stations for the protection of caravans, and that the annual expenses should not exceed $60,000.
—Henry M. Stanley in Century.

A FORTY-YEAR-OLD PARTY.

The fortieth anniversary of the organization of the Republican party was celebrated at Washington City last Saturday night by the Republican Club. It was stated that the first convention was held in Pittsburgh, February 22d, 1856, but as the convention was arranged for at Washington, it was decided that the National Capital was the place for celebrating the anniversary. A. M. Clapp, one of the men who attended the Pittsburgh Convention, presided at the meeting last Saturday, and addresses were delivered by several prominent members of the party.

The Republican party was organized to prevent the extension of slavery. That was its sole aim and object. "The founders were ridiculed by the Abolitionists and Wendell Phillips denounced them as hypocrites, time-servers and double-dealers, much in the same strain as the Silver men and Populists are denounced to-day by the organs and hirelings of the gold trust. The founders of the Republican party were represented as fanatics, men with one idea and that an impracticable one, yet in a few years that party had control of the Federal Government and held it for twenty-four consecutive years. They had one paramount issue in their platform, but they legislated on all important matters. They paid no attention to the assertions of the Whigs and Democrats that there was not room in the United States for three National parties, and in a few years had such complete control of the country that there was virtually no other party in existence, except in name. Now, members of that party assert, as did the Whigs and Democrats, that there is no occasion for a third party, and this, too, in the face of the fact that millions of voters are giving conclusive proof that they are dissatisfied with the old parties, by swaying from one to the other at each recurring election. In 1892 a Democratic tidal wave elected Cleveland by 277 electoral votes to 145 for Harrison and gave the Democrats the House of Representatives by a majority of nearly one hundred. In 1894, just two years later, a Republican cyclone swept the country and left the Republicans 244 members to 108 Democrats in Congress. The people were dissatisfied with Democratic legislation and buried the party that swept the country in 1892 out of sight at the next election. Now the party in the ascendancy in Congress is doing nothing more for the country than the Democratic party, and voters are heartily tired of both. To say that under such circumstances there is no occasion for a third party is to admit that the people have lost their independence and must alternate between Republicanism and Democracy, with no hope of getting relief from either, forever and aye.

FREE COINAGE AND TARIFF.

The Republicans of Nevada, that is the men who run the party machine, do not seem to be in accord with the party in Colorado, Idaho, Montana and other silver producing States. Here in Nevada, doubtless for the purpose of putting the wool over the sheep-men's eyes and getting them to stand in with the machine, tariff and office are made the leading issues, while in the other silver producing States free coinage is considered of at least as much importance as the tariff on wool. Discussing the subject the Denver Republican of the 18th instant says:

The Protectionist Republicans in the Eastern States may as well understand now as at any future time that no high tariff legislation can be enacted until they first aid in the reopening of our mints to the unrestricted coinage of both silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, without the co-operation of any foreign country. The Republicans of the west are as firm believers in the policy of protection as their Eastern brethren, but they also know that bimetallicism is the more important policy of the two, and until it is secured they will withhold their support from all protective tariff bills in Congress.

That is Republicanism in Colorado. Do the Republicans of Nevada endorse it? They believe in protection in Colorado, but they know that bimetallicism is the more important and until it is secured they will withhold their support from all protective tariff bills. Senator Teller will not support a tariff bill unless it is coupled with a free coinage bill, and not only the Republicans, but a large majority of the people of the State endorse his course. The Senators and Representatives from Nevada are in full accord with Senator Teller, yet they are denounced by every little place hunter connected with the Republican machine in bar-rooms and on street corners. Senators Teller, Jones and Stewart and Representative Newlands believe that the remonetization of silver is of the greatest importance to the country, but they are not opposed to a moderate tariff. They want a free coinage act and a tariff act to go on the statutes together. The Nevada place hunter thinks a stall at the public crib is the paramount issue and the financial and tariff questions are to him matters of secondary importance. He fancies that his success in getting office depends upon vilifying our Congressional Representatives and he exhausts his vocabulary of billingsgate every time he refers to Jones, Stewart or Newlands. That is Nevada Republicanism to-day as expounded by the self-constituted leaders of the party. Principles and the welfare of the State are ignored for a mere chance of getting Federal pie in the event of the election of a Republican President.

WASHINGTON AND SILVER.

Washington's Birthday was observed at Spokane, Washington, by the friends of silver, and addresses were delivered by some of the most eminent men in the State. Washington, as first President of the United States, was a friend of silver, and made the silver dollar the money unit of the country. The coin as issued from the mint in 1792 bore the inscription "One Dollar or Unit, 100 Cents," and the friends of silver at Spokane deemed the anniversary of Washington's Birthday an appropriate occasion to speak in favor of silver remonetization, and call attention to the fact that our modern statesmen repudiate as unsound the dollar of 412½ grains of standard silver, which the founders of the government deemed should be the unit of the monetary system of the United States.

What a difference between the Father of his Country and his compatriots and the Cleveland Democrats and Sherburnes of Republicanism! The heroes of the Revolution declared the silver dollar of 412½ grains to be 100 cents; the tools of the gold trust repudiate that declaration, and are doing all in their power to make the silver dollar valueless. The fathers had the coin stamped "unit or 100 cents," the friends of the gold trust sacrilegiously substituted for the 100 cents "In God We Trust," and then refused to trust the Dime or the dollar for 100 cents, unless the debt was made payable in gold.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

A fire at Johannesburg, South African Republic, yesterday, destroyed $375,000 worth of property.

The President is off on another duck hunt and Congress is expecting another surprise when he returns.

George Grant, an old resident of Rough and Ready, California, lost one of his eyes and injured the other while inspecting a blast.

R. P. Marshall, the evangelist, died at Chicago, Sunday, from the effect of injuries sustained by him in a railroad accident nine years ago.

Ex-President Harrison denies that he is to be married April 6th or at any other specified date, though he does not deny that he is engaged to be married.

Ex-Treasurer James McCantley of Teocoma, Washington, convicted of using public money for his own purposes, has been sentenced to State prison for four years.

A notice posted at Salvation Army headquarters in New York gives the substance of a cablegram from London announcing that Field Commander Eva Booth has been placed in charge of the army in America, and all officers must report to her.

Silver certificates advanced to 70 in New York yesterday. These certificates must not be confused with silver notes. The latter are a legal tender and the silver certificates sold on Change call for so much bullion at a New York bank.

The pugilists are now transferring their words to the London papers. A match will probably be arranged on the other side of the Atlantic between Corbett and Fitzsimmons if they want to fight. The Bellinghame Club offers to give a purse of $3,000.

The silver Republicans will permit no tariff legislation until free coinage is assured. They will raise the issue in the Republican National Convention, and if possible force the gold men to choose between free coinage with protection and the gold standard without protection.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her, and she says it saved her life. Mr. Flos, Rogers, 130 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this remedy for coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Hodgkinson's Drug Store, Regular size 50c. and $1.

Tollmire-Caldwell.

A quiet wedding took place last Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. Pearl Upson, Mr. John Tollmire, a young man well known in Reno, and Miss Nellie Josephine Caldwell, a sister of Mrs. Pearl Upson, being the contracting parties. Rev. Father Dermody officiated and Mr. Seymour Upson and Miss Lillie Westfall stood up with the young couple. Only relatives and a few friends of the contracting parties were present. Mr. and Mrs. Tollmire will remain in Reno for the present, but in a short time will leave for Redlands, California, where Mr. Tollmire owns property, and where they will make their home.

The Journal extends congratulations.

To Protect the Tolling Masses. The Virginia, Gold Hill and Silver City Miners' Unions have recently joined the Western Federation of Miners. It is expected that this organization will federate with the Knights of Labor, American Railway Union and Trades Union, and eventually form an organization to be known as the American Federation of Labor. Its purposes will be to protect the laborer and tolling masses. The next session of the Western Federation of Miners will be held at Denver, Colorado, May 11, 1896.

LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

The Utah papers say Mercur #4 ore is mined and milled at a profit of $2 per ton.

Times are dull in Idaho and the people amuse themselves with "jack rabbit socials." At a round-up the other day 2,000 rabbits were captured and sent to neighboring towns and given away.

Neah Bay, Washington, is the wettest place in all that wet State, and perhaps the rainiest spot in the whole country. The average annual rainfall there is 123 inches. In New York City it is 45 inches.

The 21,000 pound casting which forms part of the new rock crusher being shipped in by the DeLamar Company has reached its destination. The Picoch Record says this is the largest piece of machinery that has yet been brought in here.

The Southern Pacific shops in Sacramento are again running full blast. Gradually the force has been increased until it now numbers 1,700 men, and the chances are that 300 more will be added to the working force before thirty days go by.

The Secretary of the Board of Trade of Elko is receiving letters relative to establishing a wool scouring factory at that place. The Death Tidings says there is shipped from Elko annually 300,000 pounds of wool, and east of Elko to the State line over 200,000 pounds, making something over 500,000 pounds of wool shipped out of the country annually.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be recommended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

MUSICAL AND OTHERWISE.

Patti, Olive, Melba and Nordica are threatened with a rival in the young soprano, Miss Helen Beach Yaw of California. She is a most recent attraction in the musical world. Her claim to glory and fame lies in the wide range of her voice, which can truthfully be dominated the widest ranged soprano in the world. It extends from "g" below the treble staff to "b" altissimo, a range of nearly four octaves.

The rapidity with which she passes from a full voice to the faintest of echo tones is marvelous. The wonderful compass of her voice, its lyric sweetness and her physical ease has evoked great comment from musical critics. Her endowments are astounding. One can scarce follow her in that beautiful flight, which first intones in a clear and rhythmic measure note upon note until the altissimo glides flute-like from her lips into the realm of the unearthly. She lacks strength in the middle registers. She does not have the execution of a Patti nor the passion of a Calve nor the magnetism of a Melba, yet in those beautiful echo tones, so far beyond the ordinary range of the human voice, sweet, clear and distinct, she gives promise under cultivation and experience to be a second Jenny Lind.

Miss Yaw is a native of New York but her home is in California. She is a slender, graceful blonde, with a classic face and clear blue eyes not yet outgrown the winsomeness of schoolgirlhood. Her musical education has been of the best. For three years she studied under Miss Thos Bjorksten of New York. Afterwards in Paris she studied under Dello Sedie and Bax. Miss Yaw has achieved success in Paris, New York and Washington. She is something new in the age of human marvels.

Yvette Guilbert. Slide the "Y" and "G" and omit the "e." Utter a harsh "G" with a short "a" and a "horre" and you may pronounce the name of the famous Parisian concert hall singer, who has captured Paris, entranced New York and shocked Washington. She is purely Parisian and her songs are very "Frenchy." Oscar Hammerstein of the Olympia contracted with her at $2,500 a week and then she sang one-night stands at $1,500 a night, with single seats at $3 and $2, standing room $1. She is the most unique musical combination I ever listened to. She recites rather than sings her songs. She is a consummate imitator of nature and it is in this that her strange powers lie. De Koven scoffed at her. But as a liberal minded critic he went to hear her, prejudiced, he confessed, and came away pronouncing her an artist. And an artist she is, as truly as the person who produces the glowing canvas portraying nature in all her varying moods.

Guilbert is not pretty. Her first appearance on the stage is startling. Tall, angular, bony and red-headed. A rather languorous physique, mindful of the divine Sarah. Her peculiar dress, which the slaves of fashion would sneer at as dowdy, consisted of a Persian flowered silk, flaring skirt from a very small waist. A bodice cut so delectate that it required two small green bands on either shoulder to sustain it. Long black gloves reached to her elbows. She came on in a careless, indifferent, blasé manner. The first intonations of her voice were wonderful, those eyes blazed genius, her gestures spoke a language as intelligent as her words that came clanking forth. She sings in French, two songs only in English, but one can understand her French with less difficulty than her English.

Allan Dale of the New York Journal calls her songs "slimy putrescence." They are fearfully raucy and her gestures intensely suggestive, yet society, headed by Thos. B. Reed, who, by the way, is an excellent French scholar, turned out en masse to hear her.

"La Soularde" (The Drunken Woman), "A la Violette" (The Parisian Bawdy Girl), "Les Vierges" (a story of love) and the unmentionable and sensational "Oa fait toujours plaisir" are among her taking numbers. Her two English songs were "Linger Longer Love" and "Her Golden Hair Was Hanging Down Her Back."

She is simply a concert hall singer in Paris. When a French Charity in New York City gave a benefit at the Metropolitan Opera House, Melba, Nordica and Placido, who were invited to sing, refused to appear on the stage with her, yet she went ahead with a concert company of her own and one of the largest audiences that ever assembled within the theatre gave her an ovation that must have made Melba and her friends green with professional jealousy.

Six years ago she was receiving $30 a week; now she receives $8,000 a week. It is a deserving success, amazing, wonderful, unique.

Washington is a musical city in every sense of the word. She has the best musical productions offered in America. The Walter Damrosch Opera Company has just finished a successful engagement of four German operas; and next week the Metropolitan Opera Company will give Carmen, Romeo and Juliet, Aida and Falstaff. Olive, Melba and Nordica, three of the foremost singers in the world, the De Reszke, one of whom is the finest tenor in the world, will sustain the title roles. They are supported by Seach, the contralto formerly with Patti Bauer-Alister, Plaudon and M. Victor Maurel, the famous Frenchman. Grand Opera comes high. Orchestra, single seats $5, and thousands are turned away at that price. Yet one will pay $2 for the privilege of standing up three hours to hear these voices, the consummation of human genius.

Washington, February 23, 1896.

A Brilliant Violinist. John Phillip Sousa is indeed fortunate in having secured for his Fall and Winter tour Miss Corris Duke, the charming little violinist, who has captured the hearts of the music-loving public of America. Miss Duke is the daughter of the famous warrior, Gen. eral Basil Duke. This plucky Southern girl began her musical studies at the age of eight years. For several years she studied in this country under Jacobson, afterwards entering the conservatory at Berlin, where she was a pupil for several years more under the great Joachim, being the particular favorite of that wonderful master. On her return to this country and her appearance in concerts in New York and other large Eastern cities, she jumped immediately into the favor of the press and public. Among America's gifted female violinists, Miss Duke has no superior and few, if any, equals.

A Sad Death. Jerry Menard of Verdi who it will be remembered shot one of his sons accidentally over a year ago while hunting, was taken sick a short time ago and notwithstanding he had the best of care and medical aid he died yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. From the beginning of his sickness he had insisted that he wanted to be with his boy and seemed determined to die. It is said that the poor fellow has grieved continuously from the time of the killing of his boy, and while his late illness did not seem serious at first, he gradually grew worse until death relieved him of his suffering. The case is indeed a sad one and the remaining members of the family have the sympathy of the whole community.

Board of Commissioners.

The Commissioners met yesterday pursuant to adjournment, Messrs. Hyman and Alt being present. The report of the appraisers on the land of S. O. Wells for a cattle road was taken up for consideration, and it was ordered that the appraisement be accepted as far as the county is concerned, the figures named to govern the purchase of land for the roadway. It is probable that the road will be opened in the near future.

District Court.

In the case of the State vs. Dunkle & Armarko, the demurrer to plaintiff's complaint, having been argued and submitted heretofore, the Court ordered that the demurrer be sustained, upon the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction in the matter.

In the case of Mary J. A. Nadon, administratrix of the estate of A. Nadon, deceased, vs. Duncan McIntosh, a motion to dismiss the action was denied and the case set for trial for March 24, the plaintiff given until February 27th to amend complaint, and the defendant until Saturday, the 29th, to answer.

The case of Betsy G. Andrews vs. J. V. Peers, administratrix of the estate of Ben Andrews, deceased, occupied the attention of the Court for the remainder of the day. The suit is for a claim that was rejected by the administrator.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

Miss Anna Eva Fay Entertains and Mystifies a Large Audience With Her Wonderful Performance.

A large audience greeted Miss Anna Fay at the Opera House last night and even the doubtful ones were so mystified that they did not attempt to even offer a theory of an explanation of her wondrous art. Although a little woman, the mysterious power she possesses fairly awed the spectators.

Allen C. Bragg, by request, went upon the stage and, examined the cabinet and settings to see that there was no mechanical apparatus or any change of collation, and remained seated on the stage while the lady gave her exhibition.

She was placed in the cabinet, tied hand and foot, the bandages used to tie her sewed and sealed, and in fact everything possible done to prevent a movement of any kind.

Mr. Bragg examined the knots, coils and other preparations, then a box was placed over Miss Fay, leaving only her head in sight. The curtains on the cabinet were hardly closed when bells were rung, instruments played upon, messages written and a number of other almost supernatural occurrences took place, and at a signal the curtains were quickly thrown open, and Mr. Bragg made a careful examination and reported to the audience that he found everything the same as when he first examined it.

Miss Fay then took a handkerchief borrowed from one of the audience, and, after a few passes with her hands, dropped it upon the floor and walked away, when the handkerchief immediately followed her around the stage. She placed her hand flat upon the top of an ordinary light stand and raised it high from the floor and carried it about the stage. Litchfield gave a splendid exhibition of facial expressions and imitations, which is a whole show in itself.

Miss Fay was then blind folded and covered with a sheet, placed in a state of somnolency and read messages, answered questions asked in the mind of the questioner, gave advice, etc. This part of the performance created much merriment and was heartily enjoyed. Miss Fay will appear again this evening at the Opera House; admission, 25 cents, 35 cents and 50 cents.

Twice Lanced by Physician and Cured by Hood's.

There is no form of Scrofula more obstinate or more common than swelling of the glands of the neck. But every form of blood disease yields to the potent powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read the following from a grateful father:

"Our little boy when a little over a year old had three large bunches come on the left side of his neck. A physician lanced the bunches twice. He advised a blood medicine and we commenced giving our boy Hood's Sarsaparilla. He has taken four bottles. The bunches on his neck have disappeared and

A CONJURER'S TALE OF WOE.

Confederate Produced a Handful of Change
Instead of a Marked Dollar.

Carl Hertz, the illusionist, was talking of some of the accidents that sometimes spoil the art of the conjuror.
"It was in Nashville," he said, "that I experienced a real knock down blow.
I was performing the well known trick of passing a marked coin into the center of an uncut orange; at least that's what a good many people thought I was doing. I used a silver dollar, and emphasized the trick by passing the coin into the pocket of some boy whom I had enticed on to the stage.

"I will openly confess that the boy had to be a confederate, and that the marked dollar had its fellow in one previously prepared by me. One night, as I was entering the theater, I looked around for a likely youth to aid me in my deceitful dealing. I picked a boy and promised to pass him in if he would follow my instructions.

"I am a conjuror," I said. "I want you to put this dollar in your right hand trouser pocket. I'll get you a seat in the front row. What I ask for somebody to come on the stage, you must come. Then I will ask you to produce the dollar."

"The boy promised everything, and after making arrangements for him at the door, I left him. When I was ready for the dollar trick, I saw my young confederate sitting upon a stool in the front row. I had prevailed upon another member of the audience to lend me a dollar marked exactly as was that I had given to the boy.

"I passed that borrowed dollar into the orange, cut the fruit open, and out dropped the coin. Then I went on:
"And now, ladies and gentlemen, I will perform a still more difficult feat.
I have passed that dollar into an orange.
Now I will ask some member of the audience to step on the stage, and, without going anywhere near him, I will pass the same dollar, marked, as you have seen, into his right hand trouser pocket."

"True to his bargain, the boy stepped to the stage. I stepped opposite him and asked:

"Now, sir, have you ever seen me before?"

"No, sir," was the answer.

"I have here a dollar," I continued.
"I am going to pass it into your right hand trouser pocket. One—two—three—go!"

"I made the proper magician's pass and smiled confidently upon my audience.

"Now," I said to my assistant, "put your hand into your right hand trouser pocket and give me the dollar."

"The boy looked a bit sheepish, but he did as I bid him. Then, to my unutterable horror, he produced a handful of silver and said:

"I've only got 99 cents of it left, sir."

"I went out in a hurry and took a drink."—New York Times.

A MAN FOR AN EMERGENCY.

Surprising Experience in a Car of a Boy
Who Was Headstrong.

A poorly dressed woman with a boy about 8 years old boarded one of the Union Trolley company's cars in White Plains avenue recently. There was no vacant seat, and she grabbed a strap in front of a young man and prepared to hang on. The young man got up and thipped his hat to her. Quick as a flash he dropped her hand and leaped full to the seat on his knees, taking care to wipe his muddy feet on the clothing of the passengers on either side. The young man looked first at the woman, for whom he intended the seat, and then at the boy.

"The woman shook her head and said:

"Poor boy! I guess he's tired. He can have it, sir."

The young man looked from one to the other again. He shifted about unnecessarily for a moment. The other passengers in the car giggled. That decided him. Holding to a strap with one hand, he reached for the boy with the other and got him by the nape of the neck.
He lifted him clear of the seat and held him dangling and kicking in the air.
The woman was about to protest. Then she thought better of it and sat down in the vacant seat.

"Madam," said the young man, throwing the boy at her, "here is your boy."

"Thank you, sir," she said. "He is a bit headstrong, it's true, sir."

The boy looked astonished. He whin-pered a little. The woman patted him on the head, and there wasn't a word heard from him from that time until the Harlem bridge was reached and the crowd got out.—New York Sun.

The Girls Where "Poor Joe" Died.

"Tom All Alone's," the dismal graveyard in Russell court, Drury lane, immortalized by Dickens in the Poor Joe episode of "Bleak House," is now almost an open space, owing to the extensive demolitions in the neighborhood. The old dismal passage and steps have gone, and the yard is paved and has out as a poor children's gymnasium, but the stullen looking gate with the rusty iron bars still remains, and is, in the space, in the custody of the common council.—London News.

Kinglake and The Times.

It was Kinglake who uttered one of the neatest of mottoes on the peculiar character of the London Times. He had little fondness for that journal in spite of personal friendships which might have been expected to soften his view of the question. The paper was still to him a sort of Juggernaut, irresistible and fateful. On seeing an announcement of the new editor's marriage, he exclaimed:
"Heavens! That brings The Times into relations with humanity."

Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is unequalled
